Sanitized Version of Project Blue Book Case Files on Sightings of Unidentified Flying Objects, 1947–1969

Help us transcribe case files on sightings of unidentified flying objects (UFOs) of Project Blue Book, the U.S. Air Force investigation into UFOs that were sighted between June 1947 and December 1969.

Please note: Do not try to recreate the layout of forms, transcribe them in a way that makes sense to a reader. See our FAQs for advice on transcribing tables.

Case Files in the U.S. District Court of Massachusetts

1790-1917

Help us transcribe such cases as “Two Friends, One Schooner,” “Habeas Corpus for Three Pirates,” and “Lincoln, Benjamin v. 16 boxes of lemons.”

These files include written charges or allegations by the plaintiffs; pleas; answers; and demurrers by defendants; appearances of attorneys; and jury verdicts. Some cases relate to the transport of enslaved persons. Many cases prior to 1866 relate to confiscation and forfeitures for smuggling, illegal entry of goods, non-payment of tariff duties, and other violations of customs and revenue laws including the Non-Intercourse and Embargo Acts of the War of 1812 period, and prizes captured during the War of 1812 and the Civil War.

Chicago as well as state and federal agencies and individuals for the murder of her son. Fred Hampton was an activist involved with the Black Panthers in the late 1960s. In December 1969, Hampton's home was raided, and fellow Black Panther Mark Clark along with Hampton were both shot to death. Others in the home were wounded and arrested. The suit was originally filed in June 1970, and was heard by Federal Judge J. Sam Perry who dismissed the case after months of testimony. The case went to the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals who ordered a retrial. The case ran for several years and was later presided over by Judge John F. Grady.

abandoned and confiscated property, its mission was to provide relief and help formerly enslaved people become self-sufficient. Because the Bureau's records contain a wide range of data about the African American experience during slavery and Reconstruction, they are an invaluable source for historians, social scientists, and genealogists.

Featured Court Case

Case File for Brown et al. v. Board of Education of Topeka et al.

Oliver Brown was one of many parents who filed five legal appeals against the Board of Education in Kansas, Virginia, South Carolina, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, which challenged segregation in schools, related to the "separate but equal" basis. These parents were concerned with the inequality in curriculum, school structures, and transportation, and advocated that their children be allowed into white schools that were closer to home and provided better education. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) represented the plaintiffs, arguing that the rights of black students had been violated under the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment. In Kansas, the court ruled in favor of education, citing Plessy v. Ferguson. In South Carolina, the court ruled against the parents, but ordered the school board to equalize the schools.
