Federal Electronic Records Modernization Initiative (FERMI)

The Federal Electronic Records Modernization Initiative (FERMI) is NARA's effort to provide a government-wide, modern, cost-effective, standardized, and interoperable set of records management solutions and services to Federal agencies. NARA identified the common, core requirements all Federal agencies need to support their records management programs. While Federal agencies may have different missions, structures, and resources, they do have common needs for managing their electronic records. They all need to manage their records in compliance with NARA's statutes, regulations, and guidance. NARA serves as the Electronic Records Management Functional Area Lead for GSA's Unified Shared Services Management \(USSM\) office's Mission Support Business Standards.

Universal Electronic Records Management Requirements

The Universal ERM Requirements identify high level business needs for managing electronic records. They are baseline ERM program requirements derived from existing statutes, standards, NARA regulations, policy, and guidance.

Federal Integrated Business Framework (FIBF) for Electronic Records Management

The FIBF is a model that enables the Federal government to better coordinate and document common business needs across agencies and focus on outcomes, data, processes and performance. It is the essential first step towards standards that will drive economies of scale and leverage the government’s buying power.

The Electronic Records Management Federal Business Lifecycle and Business Capabilities are based on the Universal ERM

Requirements. The Business Capabilities are a model framework that identifies the key functions, activities, and capabilities necessary for agencies to manage their electronic records. This document maps capabilities to authoritative references, including statutes, regulations, guidance, and standards.
